qualification*Overview of assessment

- Students complete a single assignment on a question set by the centre.
- The assignment will assess the ability to carry out a historical enquiry, analysing and evaluating historical interpretations, and organising and communicating the findings (AO1/AO3).

* Further information about coursework can be found on pages 113–126.

Creating a broad and coherent course

It is a requirement that GCE History qualifications must provide a broad and coherent course of study. Pearson has provided topics in this specification that, in combination, will enable centres to create courses that are broad and coherent.

It is important that centres are clear about how their chosen combinations of topics meet this requirement. Further information about different approaches to this can be found in Appendix 6.

Permitted combinations of examined options: entry codes

Papers 1 and 2

Papers 1 and 2 are grouped together in eight 'routes' in which options are linked by a common theme. Each of these routes comprises a mandatory Paper 1 and a choice of two options for Paper 2 of which students take only one.

Centres are not permitted to mix Paper 1 and Paper 2 options from different routes.

Paper 3

For each Paper 1 and Paper 2 route, there are a variety of Paper 3 options available.

The tables on pages 6–13 show the permitted combinations of examined papers, along with the entry codes that must be used.

Availability of Paper 3 options

There are three reasons why some Paper 3 options are not available in combination with certain Paper 1 and 2 routes:

- to avoid content overlap with options in Paper 1 or 2; or
- to ensure that students take a minimum of 20 per cent British history, as required in the GCE Subject Level Conditions and Requirements for History; or
- to ensure that students cover topics from a chronological range of at least 200 years, as required in the GCE Subject Level Conditions and Requirements for History.

Coursework

The choice of coursework task does not determine what entry code to use and so this is not included in the tables on pages 6–13.

Knowledge, skills and understanding: Papers 1 and 2

Introduction to the Paper 1 options

The relevant pages of this section specify the substantive content that must be taught for the chosen option. All of the content for the option is mandatory.

Each Paper 1 option has two focuses: themes (breadth) and historical interpretations (depth).

The four themes focus on developments and changes over a broad timescale. As well as understanding the content, students will need to develop skills necessary to answer questions that target knowledge and understanding of the period (AO1).

In chronological terms, the historical interpretations section comes either at the end of the themes or runs parallel to them, depending on the option chosen. In either case, the themes provide context for the historical interpretations without duplicating content. As well as understanding the substantive content, students will need to develop skills necessary to answer questions that target the ability to analyse and evaluate historical interpretations (AO3).

Further information about the knowledge, skills and understanding to be assessed can be found in Appendix 7.

Introduction to the Paper 2 options

The Paper 2 option must be chosen from the same route as the Paper 1 option, and so the content for the Paper 1 and 2 options are grouped together.

The relevant pages of this section specify the substantive content that must be taught for the chosen option. All of the content for the option is mandatory.

Each Paper 2 option is focused on depth, requiring more detailed knowledge and understanding of the topic, and over a shorter time period, than Paper 1.

The content is organised into four key topics. As well as understanding the content, students will need to develop skills necessary to answer questions that target knowledge and understanding of the period (AO1) and questions that target the ability to analyse and evaluate sources (AO2).

Further information about the knowledge, skills and understanding to be assessed can be found in Appendix 7.

Route A: Conquest, control and resistance in the medieval world

Overview

Students taking Route A will study:

- Paper 1, Option 1A: The crusades, c1095–1204

and either:

- Paper 2, Option 2A.1: Anglo-Saxon England and the Anglo-Norman Kingdom, c1053–1106

or:

- Paper 2, Option 2A.2: England and the Angevin Empire in the reign of Henry II, 1154–89.

The options in Route A are linked by the themes of attempts at conquest and control, which were manifested in different ways, such as invasion, coercion and administrative reforms. They are also linked by resistance to those attempts, for example by conquered peoples, powerful individuals and religious institutions.

Studying two distinct geographical areas will allow students to develop a greater appreciation of the nature of power and royal authority in the medieval world and of similarities and contrasts between them (although students will not be required to answer comparative questions that link the breadth and the chosen depth option).

Paper 1, Option 1A: The crusades, c1095–1204

Overview

This option comprises a study in breadth of the early crusading movement from the late eleventh to the early thirteenth century. It has continued relevance as, even today, the crusades exercise a powerful influence in many countries of the Near East, and their legacy continues to shape relations with Europe and the world.

The focus of study is on developments and changes over a broad timescale and so the content is presented as themes spanning a significant period: 1095–1192. This option also contains a study in depth of historical interpretations on a broad question that is contextualised by, and runs on from, the themes: reasons for the failure of the Fourth Crusade.

Themes	Content
1 Reasons for the crusades, 1095–1192	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Religious motives: the concept of 'just war'; the impact of the papal reform movement on ideas of penance and remission of sins; guarantees of plenary indulgence; the aim of freeing Jerusalem; papal support for the crusades; the influence of preachers, including Bernard of Clairvaux. Political motives: threats to the Byzantine Empire; Alexius I Comnenus's appeal to Urban II; the political ambitions of the papacy; Urban's political problems in Germany and France; violence and growing disorder in Europe; the Second and Third Crusades and the defence of the crusader states. The knights and the crusades: the nature of knighthood in the late eleventh century; the development of the concept of chivalry; protecting Christianity and pilgrims; settlement in the crusader states and the acquisition of wealth.
2 Leadership of the crusades, 1095–1192	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The First Crusade: the eight princes and their changing priorities; Baldwin's conquest of Edessa 1097; Bohemund's seizure of Antioch 1098; emergence of Godfrey of Bouillon as leader and the capture of Jerusalem 1099. Louis VII, Conrad III and the Second Crusade: personal and political rivalries and tensions; their relationship with Manuel I; the failure to consult the leaders of the crusader states; failure at Damascus 1148 and the end of the crusade. The troubled leadership of the Third Crusade: the significance of the death of Frederick Barbarossa; the rivalries of Richard I and Philip II; Richard's decision to attack Sicily and Cyprus; Philip's return to France. Richard's leadership at Acre and Jaffa and reasons for his decision not to attack Jerusalem.

Themes	Content
3 The crusader states of Outremer, 1100–92	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Geography and economy: Edessa, Tripoli, Antioch and the primacy of Jerusalem; the absence of natural boundaries to the east; the importance of the seaports for maintaining economic and military links with Europe; trade between Muslim and Christian cities; patterns of settlement and migration from Europe. • Defence: Baldwin I's consolidation of territory, 1100–18; adoption of local methods of fortification and the building of castles; the protection of the military orders of Templars and Hospitallers, including their control of border castles; financial support for the military orders by European nobles; lack of support for the states from Byzantium and Europe. • The government of the crusader states: the rule of Baldwin I and Baldwin II; Baldwin III and the conflict with Queen Melisende; the rule of the 'leper king' Baldwin IV; the importance of growing divisions within the ruling elite and the succession crisis of 1185; the significance of Raymond of Tripoli's truce with Saladin.
4 The changing Muslim response to the crusades, 1095–1192	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Muslim political and religious divisions: the split between the Sunni Seljuk Turks and the Shi'ah Fatimids of Egypt; the significance of Kilij Arslan's defeats at Nicaea and Dorylaeum 1097; the defeat of Kerbogha's forces at Antioch 1098; the fall of Jerusalem 1099. • The growth of Muslim power, 1144–69: Zengi and the seizure of Edessa 1144; Nur ad-Din's consolidation of power, 1146–54. Nur's growing rift with Saladin. • The power of Saladin, 1169–92: consolidation of Saladin's power in Egypt and Syria, 1169–84; the attack on Tiberias, the battle of Hattin and fall of Jerusalem to Saladin 1187; the siege of Acre and the battle of Arsuf, 1189–91; Saladin's success in keeping Muslim control of Jerusalem in 1192.

Historical interpretations	Content
What explains the failure of the Fourth Crusade?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Innocent III's plans for the crusade and the significance of their failure. • The significance of the size and leadership of the crusading forces. • The impact of the role of Venice and of the priorities of the Doge Enrico Dandolo. • The significance of the failure of Prince Alexius and of the sack of Constantinople.

Paper 2, Option 2A.1: Anglo-Saxon England and the Anglo-Norman Kingdom, c1053–1106

Overview

This option comprises a study in depth of England and Normandy from the death of Earl Godwin in 1053, through the reigns of William I and William II to the re-establishment of the Anglo-Norman Kingdom by Henry I in 1107. These were dramatic years of change for England and would shape the course of its history for generations.

Students will gain an in-depth understanding of the nature and extent of change in government, society and the church, and of the English people's resistance to changes.

Key topics	Content
1 Late Anglo-Saxon England, c1053–66	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Monarchy and government: the power of the English monarchy; the earldoms and shires; local government; the legal system. • The economy of England: the system of taxation; royal mints and the silver penny; coastal towns and overseas trade; urbanisation and the growth of trading centres. • The house of Godwin: Harold Godwinson's succession as Earl of Wessex; the power of the Godwin siblings; the campaign against the Welsh; Harold Godwinson's embassy to Normandy; the rising against Tostig and his exile. • Early threats to Harold's throne: Edward's death and the claimants to the throne; the witan and the coronation; Harald Hardrada's invasion; reasons for, and significance of, the outcome of the battles of Gate Fulford and Stamford Bridge 1066.
2 The Norman conquest of England and extension of control in Wales and Scotland, 1066–93	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • William of Normandy's invasion: William's military experience; reasons for the Norman victory at Hastings, including the leadership skills of Harold and William, Norman and English troops and tactics. • Dealing with opposition to the Normans: the submission of the earls 1066; rebellions in the south, 1067–69; the Harrying of the North; the East Anglian Rebellion; the revolt of the earls 1075. Route B: Religion and the state in early modern Europe

Students taking Route B will study:

- Paper 1, Option 1B: England, 1509–1603: authority, nation and religion

and either:

- Paper 2, Option 2B.1: Luther and the German Reformation, c1515–55

or:

- Paper 2, Option 2B.2: The Dutch Revolt, c1563–1609.

The options in Route B are linked by the twin themes of religion and the state. The religious unity of medieval Christendom disintegrated during the sixteenth century, with repercussions for the centuries that followed. It was also a time when the authority of the secular state evolved throughout Europe and would lead England, the Netherlands and the German states down very different paths.

Studying two different countries allows students to develop a greater appreciation of the nature of religion and state power in the early modern era and the similarities and contrasts between them (although students will not be required to answer comparative questions that link the breadth and the chosen depth option).

Paper 1, Option 1B: England, 1509–1603: authority, nation and religion

Overview

This option comprises a study in breadth in which students will learn about the key political, social and economic features of Tudor England from the accession of Henry VIII to the death of Elizabeth I, an era of decisive change for the English state and church.

The focus of study is on developments and changes over a broad timescale and so the content is presented as themes spanning a significant duration: 1509–1588. This option also contains a study in depth of historical interpretations on a broad question that is contextualised by, and runs on from, the themes: whether there was a general crisis of government in the last years of Elizabeth I's reign, 1589–1603.

Themes	Content
1 Monarchy and government, 1509–88	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The Tudor monarchs: personal and political qualities; popular attitudes towards the Tudors; the disputed successions and the significance of gender for Mary and Elizabeth. The changing role of parliament: Henry VIII's parliaments before 1529; from 'King and Parliament' to 'King-in-Parliament'; the growing confidence of parliament under Elizabeth. The principal servants of the crown: the powers exercised by leading ministers; the influence of Wolsey, Cromwell and Burghley. Changes to the structure of government.
2 Religious changes, 1509–88	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Tudor monarchs and religious change; Henry VIII and the end of papal power in England; religious changes under Edward and Mary; the Elizabethan compromise of 1558–63. Catholicism and its survival: popular attitudes to Catholicism; the extent of religious changes, 1529–36; the survival of Catholicism in the regions; recusancy and Jesuit missions in Elizabeth's reign; the role of the Catholic nobility. Protestantism and puritanism: Protestant influences in England, 1509–47, including the significance of Anne Boleyn; Protestantism under Edward VI; the growth and significance of puritanism during Elizabeth's reign.

Themes	Content
3 State control and popular resistance, 1509–88	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Tudor control of the country: the Marcher Council and the Council of the North; the role of the nobility in maintaining control; the growing power of the justices of the peace; the lords lieutenant under Elizabeth. • The state and the poor: reasons for the growth of poverty in Tudor England; punishments for beggars and vagrants; the importance of charities and local authorities in the provision of poor relief. • Resistance to Tudor rule: the significance of resistance to demands for subsidies and taxes; the nature of the threat posed by popular risings, 1536–69; reasons for the decline of popular resistance, 1570–88.
4 Economic, social and cultural change, 1509–88	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Patterns of domestic and foreign trade: the significance of the wool and cloth industries; the development of 'new draperies' from the 1560s; the impact of the migration of foreign textile workers; the role of London as a market for goods; the consequences of exploration for trade. • The changing structure of society: the increase in population; the impact of the closure of the monasteries; the spread of enclosure and its effects on the rural population; the impact of growing urbanisation; the growing professional classes. • Cultural change: the impact of the growth of grammar schools and universities; the impact of the printing press; the impact of religious change on culture; patronage and the development of drama, music and poetry; the significance of royal and noble patronage; developments in drama, music, poetry and architecture; the impact of the 'cult of Gloriana'.

Historical interpretations	Content
Was there a general crisis of government in the last years of Elizabeth I's reign, 1589–1603?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The significance of threats to national security from Spain and Ireland. • The extent of faction at court and the succession issue. • The importance of growing conflicts with parliament and the session of 1601. • The importance of harvest failures in the 1590s and the growth of social distress.

Paper 2, Option 2B.1: Luther and the German Reformation, c1515–55

Overview

This option comprises a study in depth of Luther’s challenge to the Catholic Church, the development of a separate Lutheran Church within the German states, and the response of Empire and the papacy to this challenge to 1555. This would cause a fracture in the religious unity of western Christianity, which would, in time, spread through Europe and beyond.

Students will gain an in-depth understanding of Luther’s religious protests and the involvement of secular and religious leaders in driving, and resisting, religious and political change in the German states in this period.

Key topics	Content
1 Conditions in early sixteenth-century Germany	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The Holy Roman Empire: the structure of central government; the seven electors; the respective powers of the Emperor and the princes; the imperial election of 1519. • The state of the German economy: growing towns and cities; trade and communications between the states. • The German Catholic Church: the religious and secular power of the bishops; the parish clergy; anticlericalism and popular piety; the influence of humanism. • The papacy and Germany: the corruption of the papal court; papal financial demands on Germany; Tetzl and the sale of indulgences.
2 Luther’s early challenge to the Catholic Church, 1517–20	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The influences on Luther’s views; his views on corruption within the Catholic Church. • The Ninety-Five Theses 1517: Luther’s rejection of indulgences; his aim of promoting academic debate; the publication of the Ninety-Five Theses and their impact; the importance of the printing press. • The shaping of Luther’s beliefs: his protest to Albert of Mainz; the response of Leo X to Luther’s early challenge; the debate with Cajetan in 1518; significance of the debate with Eck in 1519. • Luther’s excommunication 1520: Luther’s tower experience and his acceptance of justification by faith alone; the 1520 pamphlets addressed to the clergy, nobility and the German people; the burning of the Bull of Excommunication in 1520.

Key topics	Content
3 The development of Lutheranism, 1521–46	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The Diet of Worms and its aftermath: Luther’s condemnation as a heretic and an outlaw; the attitude of Charles V; the protection of Frederick the Wise at Wartburg Castle. • Luther’s attitude to religious and political radicalism: views on the Radical Reformation by Carlstadt and the Zwickau prophets in Wittenberg, his lack of support for the revolt of the Imperial Knights; the reasons for, and consequences of, his denunciation of the Peasants’ War 1525; the effect of Luther’s political conservatism on the German princes. • Lutheran beliefs and their influence: the importance of justification; the German Mass; the doctrine of the Real Presence; Luther’s translation of the Bible; the Large Catechism and Small Catechism; the growing popularity of Lutheranism within Germany. • Luther’s declining influence, 1530–46: Philip Melancthon’s codification of Lutheran beliefs; the Loci Communes 1521; the Augsburg Confession 1530 and its importance; growing divergence between Catholic and Lutheran beliefs; Luther and the Philip of Hesse affair 1540.
4 The spread and survival of Lutheranism, 1521–55	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The failure of Lutheran-Catholic negotiations: the Diets of Speyer 1526 and 1529; the Diet of Regensburg 1541. • The role of the German princes: Luther’s protection by Frederick the Wise; the significance of the conversion of Albrecht of Hohenzollern, Philip of Hesse and John of Saxony; formation of the Schmalkaldic League 1531; the League’s significance for the spread of Lutheranism. • Charles V and Lutheranism: his conflicting priorities in Spain, France and against the Ottomans; limited support for Charles from the Catholic princes; the significance of the Schmalkaldic War; the Peace of Passau 1552; the Peace of Augsburg 1555. • The papacy and Lutheranism: the failure to respond effectively to Luther; Paul III and attempts at reform; the Consilium 1537; the summoning of the Council of Trent.

Paper 2, Option 2B.2: The Dutch Revolt, c1563–1609

Overview

This option comprises a study in depth of the successful challenge that the northern provinces of the Netherlands mounted against the power of the Spanish Empire in the years c1563–1609, a challenge that would contribute to a dramatic decline in Spain's power and produce one of the first republics of the era.

Students will gain an in-depth understanding of the challenges that the Dutch provinces overcame in securing their independence, the role of significant individuals, and the importance of religious differences between the northern and southern provinces in influencing the process of change.

Key topics	Content

Route C: Revolutions in early modern and modern Europe

Overview

Students taking Route C will study:

- Paper 1, Option 1C: Britain, 1625–1701: conflict, revolution and settlement

and either:

- Paper 2, Option 2C.1: France in revolution, 1774–99

or:

- Paper 2, Option 2C.2: Russia in revolution, 1894–1924.

The options in Route C are linked by the theme of revolutions that span the early modern and modern periods. While the revolutionary upheavals in each country involved the overthrow of existing monarchies, the causes and the consequences of these revolutions differed in important ways. Students will study the causes and course of their chosen revolutions, and the outcome for the people of Britain and either France or Russia.

Studying two different countries allows students to develop a greater appreciation of the nature of revolutions and the similarities and contrasts between them (although students will not be required to answer comparative questions that link the breadth and the chosen depth option).

Paper 1, Option 1C: Britain, 1625–1701: conflict, revolution and settlement

Overview

This option comprises a study in breadth, in which students will learn about key features of monarchical and republican rule in Britain in the seventeenth century, set within the context of broader social, economic and religious change. The events of this period saw a decisive shift in the balance of power between crown and parliament.

The focus of study is on developments and changes over a broad timescale and so the content is presented as themes spanning a significant duration: 1625–88. This option also contains a study in depth of historical interpretations on a broad question that is contextualised by, and runs on from, the themes: how revolutionary, in the years to 1701, was the Glorious Revolution of 1688–89?

Route D: Challenges to the authority of the state in the late eighteenth and nineteenth centuries

Overview

Students taking Route D will study:

- Paper 1, Option 1D: Britain, c1785–c1870: democracy, protest and reform

and either:

- Paper 2, Option 2D.1: The unification of Italy, c1830–70

or:

- Paper 2, Option 2D.2: The unification of Germany, c1840–71.

The options in Route D are linked by the theme of challenges to the authority of the state, which was manifested in different ways such as protests and the growth of nationalist sentiment. This period was one in which ordinary people, often with strong leadership, were instrumental in changing the nature of government in their respective countries. It was also a time of major political developments, when state authority in Britain, Italy and Germany was changed dramatically.

Studying two different countries allows students to develop a greater appreciation of the nature of power and authority in the given period, and to understand the similarities and contrasts between them (although students will not be required to answer comparative questions that link the breadth and the chosen depth option).

Paper 1, Option 1D: Britain, c1785–c1870: democracy, protest and reform

Overview

This option comprises a study in breadth, in which students will learn about the process of change in Britain in the given period, and the extent to which popular pressure, protest and cooperation were responsible for political, economic and social change.

The focus of study is on developments and changes over a broad timescale and so the content is presented as themes spanning a significant duration: c1785–c1870. Route E: Communist states in the twentieth century

Overview

Students taking Route E will study:

- Paper 1, Option 1E: Russia, 1917–91: from Lenin to Yeltsin

and either:

- Paper 2, Option 2E.1: Mao's China, 1949–76

or:

- Paper 2, Option 2E.2: The German Democratic Republic, 1949–90.

The options in Route E are linked by the theme of communism, one of the most significant ideologies of the twentieth century. Communism directly affected the lives of millions of people who lived under communist rule, but it also had indirect effects on countless others around the world.

Studying two different countries allows students to develop a greater understanding of the nature of communist rule and the similarities and contrasts between them (although students will not be required to answer comparative questions that link the breadth and the chosen depth option).

Paper 1, Option 1E: Russia, 1917–91: from Lenin to Yeltsin

Overview

This option comprises a study in breadth, in which students will learn about the key political, social and economic features of communist rule in Russia during the twentieth century, an era that saw its authority and influence rise to the status of a superpower, only to diminish and decline later in the century.

The focus of study is on developments and changes over a broad timescale, and so the content is presented as themes spanning a significant duration: 1917–85. This option also contains a study in depth of historical interpretations on a broad question, which is contextualised by, and runs on from, the themes: reasons for the fall of the USSR, c1985–91.

Route F: Searching for rights and freedoms in the twentieth century

Overview

Students taking Route F will study:

- Paper 1, Option 1F: In search of the American Dream: the USA, 1917–96

and either:

- Paper 2, Option 2F.1: India, c1914–48: the road to independence

or:

- Paper 2, Option 2F.2: South Africa, 1948–94: from apartheid state to 'rainbow nation'.

The options in Route F are linked by the common theme of a search for rights, freedoms and greater equality during the twentieth century. In the USA, the quest for political, social and economic advancement looked mainly to reform existing structures. In India and South Africa, this quest led to more radical outcomes, bringing an end to imperial rule in India and the apartheid regime in South Africa.

Studying two different countries allows students to develop a greater understanding of both similarities and differences in the search for greater rights, freedoms and equality in the twentieth century world (although students will not be required to answer comparative questions that link the breadth and the chosen depth option).

Paper 1, Option 1F:

In search of the American Dream: the USA, c1917–96

Overview

This option comprises a study in breadth, in which students will learn about the dramatic political, economic and social transformation of the USA in the twentieth century, an era that saw the USA challenged by the consequences of political, economic and social inequalities at home and of its involvement in international conflict.

The focus of study is on developments and changes over a broad timescale and so the content is presented as themes spanning a significant duration: 1917–80. This option also contains a study in depth of historical interpretations on a broad question, which is contextualised by, and runs on from, the themes: what impact the Reagan presidency had on the USA in the years 1981–96.

Themes	Content
1 The changing political environment, 1917–80	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • A changing presidency: the rise and decline of Republicanism to 1933; the influence of Roosevelt; changing styles of presidential leadership, 1945–72; a decline in confidence, 1968–80. • Influences on the political landscape: from rugged individualism to New Deal ideas in the 1920s and 30s; the Red Scares and anti-communism, 1917–80; liberalism, counter-culture and the conservative reaction, c1960–80. • The impact of war on domestic politics: the reasons for a return to 'normalcy' and a commitment to isolationism, 1917–41; US emergence as a Cold War superpower from 1941; the impact of involvement in Korea and Vietnam.
2 The quest for civil rights, 1917–80	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Black American civil rights, c1917–55: life in the South and the impact of northern migration, 1917–32; the impact of the New Deal, the Second World War and the Truman presidency; from legal challenge to direct action, 1917–55. • Black American civil rights, c1955–80: changing patterns and approaches, 1955–68, including southern-based campaigning, the emergence of Black Power and King's northern strategy; the impact of civil rights legislation: achievements and limits to success, 1955–80. • The search for minority rights, 1960–80: the reasons for, and nature of, Native American and hispanic American campaigns; the emergence of the gay rights movement; achievements, and limits to success, of minority campaigns.

Route G: Nationalism, dictatorship and democracy in twentieth-century Europe

Overview

Students taking Route G will study:

- Paper 1, Option 1G: Germany and West Germany, 1918-89

and either:

- Paper 2, Option 2G.1: The rise and fall of fascism in Italy, c1911-46

or:

- Paper 2, Option 2G.2: Spain, 1930-78: republicanism, Francoism and the re-establishment of democracy.

The options in Route G are linked by the themes of nationalism and dictatorship and their links with democracy. In Germany, Italy and Spain, a similar pattern of political change occurred that saw unstable democracies replaced by nationalist dictatorships, with significant impacts on the wider history of Europe, before returning to democratic forms of government.

Studying two different countries allows students to develop a greater understanding of the ways in which nationalism, dictatorship and then the transition to democracy were manifested, and of the contrasts and similarities in the nations studied (although students will not be required to answer comparative questions that link the breadth and the chosen depth option).

Paper 1, Option 1G: Germany and West Germany, 1918–89

Overview

This option comprises a study in breadth, in which students will learn about key political changes experienced in a unified Germany and then in West Germany after the Second World War, and the impact of these changes on German economic, social and cultural developments.

The focus of study is on developments and changes over a broad timescale and so the content is presented as themes spanning a significant duration: 1918–89. This option also contains a study in depth of historical interpretations on a broad question, which is contextualised by, and runs parallel to, the themes: how far Hitler’s foreign policy was responsible for the Second World War.

Route H: Democracies in change: Britain and the USA in the twentieth century

Overview

Students taking Route H will study:

- Paper 1, Option 1H: Britain transformed, 1918–97

and either:

- Paper 2, Option 2H.1: The USA, c1920–55: boom, bust and recovery

or:

- Paper 2, Option 2H.2: The USA, 1955–92: conformity and challenge.

In the twentieth century, liberal democracies came under increasing challenge from both within and without. The options in Route H allow students to understand the nature, and effectiveness, of the response to these challenges.

Studying two different countries allows students to develop a greater understanding of the challenges experienced by Britain and the USA, and of the contrasts and similarities in the responses (although students will not be required to answer comparative questions that link the breadth and the chosen depth option).

Paper 1, Option 1H: Britain transformed, 1918–97

Overview

This option comprises a study in breadth, in which students will learn about the extent to which Britain was transformed politically, socially, economically and culturally in the years 1918–79. They will consider responses to the challenges of war, fluctuations in the economy, technological advancement and the desire for greater social equality.

The focus of study is on developments and changes over a broad timescale and so the content is presented as themes spanning a significant duration: 1918–79. This option also contains a study in depth of historical interpretations on a broad question, which is contextualised by, and runs on from, the themes: what impact Thatcher’s governments had on Britain, 1979–97.

Themes	Content

Knowledge, skills and understanding: Paper 3

Introduction to the Paper 3 options

The relevant pages in this section specify the substantive content that must be taught for the chosen option. All of the content for each option is mandatory.

Each Paper 3 option has two focuses: Aspects in breadth (containing themes) and Aspects in depth (containing key topics).

The Aspects in breadth focus on developments and changes over an extended timescale of at least 100 years. As well as understanding the content, students will need to develop the skills needed to be able to answer questions that target understanding of long-term changes (AO1). The Aspects in breadth also help to contextualise the Aspects in depth, but without duplicating content.

The Aspects in depth require a more in-depth understanding than the Aspects in breadth. As well as understanding the specified content, students will need to develop the skills needed to be able to answer questions that target knowledge and understanding of the period (AO1) and questions that target the ability to analyse and evaluate sources (AO2).

Further information about the knowledge, skills and understanding to be assessed can be found in Appendix 7.

Paper 3, Option 30: Lancastrians, Yorkists and Henry VII, 1399–1509

Overview

This option comprises two parts: the Aspects in breadth focus on long-term changes and contextualise the Aspects in depth, which focus in detail on key episodes.

Together, the breadth and depth topics explore the dramatic developments in late medieval England that centred around the personalities and political skills of a series of kings, queens and their powerful subjects, and the impact of these developments on the kingdom. Within the primarily political focus on the nature of kingship and authority in England, this option also explores the wider social and economic contexts of political struggle.

Paper 3, Option 39.2: Mass media and social change in Britain, 1882–2004

Overview

This option comprises two parts: the Aspects in breadth focus on long-term changes and contextualise the Aspects in depth, which focus in detail on key episodes.

Together, the breadth and depth topics explore the ways in which the mass media developed from the end of the nineteenth century to the first years of the twenty-first century, alongside the profound changes that occurred within the family as women's roles and family leisure opportunities changed, a time of dramatic change that altered forever how the British people viewed themselves. Whilst mainly social and cultural, this option also gives students the opportunity to explore the impact of key political events and legislation.

Aspects in breadth: social change – family, home and leisure, 1882–2004

Themes	Content
1 Changing patterns of women's lives within the family and in the world of work	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Changes to women's personal lives, 1882–2004 (key developments: the Married Women's Property Act 1882, Marie Stopes' family-planning clinics from 1921, the NHS 1948, the contraceptive pill from 1961, the Abortion Law Reform Act 1967, the end of the 'composite tax system' 1991, the first 'Take our Daughters to Work' day 1994); the reasons for, and impact of, government legislation and shifts in attitudes to women's roles. Reasons for changes in women's working lives, 1882–2004; the impact on women's roles of direct action, legislation and changing attitudes (key developments: the matchgirls' strike 1888, the National Service Act 1941, the women's strike at Dagenham Ford car factory 1968, the Equal Pay Act 1970).
2 Changing patterns of family leisure	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Change and continuity in leisure, 1882–2004: entertainment in the home; changes in excursions and holidays (key developments: the first Butlin's holiday camp 1936, Holiday Pay Act 1938, foreign package holidays from the 1950s). Reasons for change in leisure patterns, 1882–2004: impact of changes in means of transport (key developments: the safety bicycle from the late 1880s, increasing car ownership in the 1920s, growth of air travel from 1950s); the impact of increasing affluence and reduced time at work; the impact of technology (key developments: cinema in the early twentieth century, radio from the 1920s, TV from 1945 and the use of the internet for leisure from the late twentieth century).

Aspects in depth: mass media: mirroring or moulding society?

Coursework

Overview

The purpose of this coursework is to enable students to develop skills in the analysis and evaluation of interpretations of history in a chosen question, problem or issue as part of an independently researched assignment.

The focus is on understanding the nature and purpose of the work of the historian. Students will be required to form a critical view based on relevant reading on the question, problem or issue. They will also be specifically required to analyse, explain and evaluate the interpretations of three historians.

The coursework will be assessed using a centre-set assignment. Assignments must meet the requirements detailed below. An assignment framework is provided to support the development of individual assignments.

Content

Learning objectives

Students will:

- recognise that interpretations are representations and constructions of the past
- recognise the relationships between interpretations and the questions that they seek to ask and answer
- comprehend and analyse the defining elements of particular interpretations
- explain why historians arrive at the interpretations they do and understand that differences in interpretation can be legitimate
- be able to evaluate differing interpretations against appropriate and relevant criteria
- organise and communicate their findings.

Teaching and learning

Teachers should provide students with a short skills-based course of study that covers the work of historians in creating interpretations and approaches to the analysis and evaluation of historical interpretations, for example to develop understanding of:

- the range of methods used by historians in their work
- the diverse range of focuses and purposes that historians have
- the different perspectives of historians.

The course should also help students to develop enquiry skills, for example:

- effective record keeping and referencing
- planning skills
- effective use of a library and the internet.

Assignment topic

Students are assessed on their analysis and evaluation of interpretations. It is permissible for coursework to cover interpretations of a question, problem or issue related to content covered in the examined components. However, the coursework task must not duplicate coverage of the historical interpretations section studied for Paper 1. Moderators will check centres' compliance with this requirement.

It is also permissible for coursework to cover a new topic area question, problem or issue, dependent on the interests of the students and provided there is a range of suitable interpretations available. In this case, it would be permissible to deliver a short course to provide students with the contextual background.

Assignment setting

Focusing the question, problem or issue

The breadth and depth of the question, problem or issue is not specified by Pearson, but it should be sufficiently complex and interesting enough to have generated disagreement between historians.

The question, problem or issue could concern any of the following perspectives: aesthetic, cultural, economic, ethnic, political, religious, scientific, social or technological, and could include debates on change, continuity, causation, consequence, similarity, difference, significance or the key features of societies and periods.

Setting the question

A contextualised assignment should be produced which follows the template below (centres must replace the words in the square brackets with the chosen question, problem or issue).

Historians have disagreed about [the chosen question, problem or issue].

What is your view about [the chosen question, problem or issue]?

With reference to three chosen works:

- analyse the ways in which interpretations of the question, problem or issue differ
- explain the differences you have identified
- evaluate the arguments, indicating which you found most persuasive and explaining your judgements.

Students may choose to divide their assignment into sections or complete it as a continuous essay, and should make use of supplementary reading as appropriate.

Assignment use and reuse

Teachers should ensure that assignments are relevant and appropriate to the student's course of learning. Students should have the opportunity to choose works relevant to the chosen question, problem or issue. Provided these requirements are met, the same assignment title could be submitted for all students in the cohort.

Teachers may reuse assignment questions provided students have access to sufficient works to enable them to make a choice as to which they compare.

Assignment guidance service

Pearson provides a free assignment guidance service. Please see www.edexcel.com for further details.

Assignment taking: research

Choosing works

Students must refer, in their assignment, to three works relevant to the chosen question, problem or issue.

- These works should be substantial enough to support the assignment, and it is recommended that they are of article or chapter length.
- The works can be in hard copy, electronic or audio-visual format, but must be created by historians (each work must be by a different historian).
- The works may be from different time periods or may be contemporary to each other.
- The works should contain interpretations that together contain a range of views or emphases. These may differ in focus, methodology and/or perspective, but must be sufficiently different for the student to be able to make valid comparisons and judgements.

Teachers must check that the works that students choose will provide sufficient evidence for them to make a satisfactory response to the question before students begin the writing phase. Students may not use as one of the three works any passages used by the teacher in the skills-based course of study.

Students are required to exercise individual judgement over the choice of works. The teacher is responsible for ensuring compliance with this rule before students begin the writing phase.

Supplementary reading

Students must undertake supplementary reading (at least two further works) to assist in their forming of a view about the interpretation under discussion and their choosing of works to focus on for detailed analysis and evaluation.

Collaboration

Students must undertake their research independently.

The resource record

While carrying out their research, students must complete a Resource record (see Appendix 5). This must list all the resources used and be checked regularly by the teacher, in order to validate the research process and verify the independence of the research undertaken.

It will provide evidence to support teacher judgements about the quality of the work and provide evidence for moderators that students have exercised choice of which resources to use.

In the 'comments' column of the resource record, students should provide evidence of why they have selected their three chosen works, including a short summary of the main differences between them.

Resources

Students must have equal access to IT resources.

Students should have access to a sufficient range of resources, including a range of works to enable them to make choices as required for their tasks.

As students must use at least three substantial works of article or chapter length from three different historians, it is understandable that a school may not be able to provide equal access to enough books for a whole cohort to use. In such cases, it is acceptable for teachers to provide a bank of resources. However, teachers should be aware that the History subject criteria require students to carry out a historical enquiry that is independently researched. To achieve higher levels students must show independent selection of works of historians. Any bank of resources provided by the teacher must therefore contain a sufficiently wide range of resources in order to ensure that students are able to exercise individual judgement over their choice of works and historians. The purpose of such a resource bank must therefore be to make a sufficient number of resources available to all students in a cohort, rather than to do the research for the students. Teachers must use their professional judgement to decide what constitutes a sufficiently wide range to ensure an appropriately diverse selection of works that will enable students to carry out independent research and exercise independent judgement when choosing historians' works.

It may occasionally be the case that individual students within a cohort end up choosing the same three works. However, moderators would expect to see evidence in the student's resource record sheet that a range of resources has been consulted and that the students have independently selected the historians' works. If the moderator is in doubt about whether students have independently selected or used resources, they will require the resource records and/or all of the work for the whole cohort to be sent.

Feedback and the role of the teacher during the research stage

Teachers must:

- check the works selected by students to ensure that they will enable the student to complete the assignment
- exercise sufficient supervision to be satisfied that the research is being undertaken independently and that students remain focused on the assignment.

Teachers may:

- help students to understand rubrics and assessment criteria.

Assignment taking: writing

Authenticity

Students and teachers must sign the Coursework authentication sheet (see Appendix 4).

Collaboration

Teachers and centres must take any steps necessary to satisfy themselves that the submitted work is the student's own and should sign the authentication statement to this effect.

Feedback during the writing phase

Teachers may:

- help students to understand rubrics, assessment criteria and controls.

Teachers must:

- review the student's first complete draft. The guidance may indicate to students if any element of the task requirements² is absent or given insufficient attention. Guidance must remain 'general', which is defined as guidance that enables students to use their initiative in making amendments and improvements independently.

Teachers must not:

- give detailed feedback to individual students about how to improve work to meet the assessment criteria. The guidance provided prior to final submission should only enable students to take the initiative in making amendments, rather than detailing what amendments should be made. This means that teachers cannot provide templates and model answers.
- mark work provisionally with a view to sharing that mark with students so that they may then improve it.
- return work to students to make changes after it has been marked.

² i.e. to analyse, explain and evaluate the interpretations in the three chosen works and to reach an overall judgement on the view, making use of supplementary reading.

What needs to be submitted by the student

The following must be submitted:

- The assignment, which must include a bibliography listing the resources used, and distinguishing clearly between the main three works that are referred to and any supplementary reading. They must ensure that all quotations and citations are referenced using an established referencing system, such as Harvard.
- The Coursework authentication sheet. This verifies the work as the student's own, lists the examined options taken and provides an accurate word count. The Pearson template must be used (see Appendix 4).
- The Resource record (see Appendix 5).

Word count

It is recommended that students write between 3,000 and 4,000 words for their assignment.

Footnotes may be used. These are not included in the word count but they must not be used to develop the student's line of argument.

Appendices may be included, containing material to which the student has made reference in their assignment, for example extended quotations or extracts. These are not included in the word count.

Students should be advised that if they exceed the word count, it is less likely that they will be able to satisfy the requirement of production of a concise response.

Presentation of work

Students must present their work for the assignment on paper. Student work must be identifiable by student name and assignment.

Further information and guidance

Further guidance and instructions on administering coursework can be found in the Joint Council for Qualifications JCQ Instructions for conducting non-examination assessments (new GCE and GCSE specifications).

Assignment marking

Teachers should mark the assignment using the assessment criteria on pages 123–125. Teachers may annotate student work but should also include any comments on the Coursework authentication sheet to justify the marks awarded (see Appendix 4).

It is important for markers to be aware that collusion between candidates is considered to be malpractice. Please see Malpractice and Plagiarism below for further information.

Understanding the mark scheme

The assessment criteria contain five levels. Each level has five bullet points representing traits that progress through the levels. The traits are as follows:

1. Identification of, selection from, and deployment of material relevant to an aspect of historical debate
2. Ability to reach and sustain an overall judgement about a matter of historical debate in its historical context
3. Analysis and explanation of differences in historians' views
4. Evaluation of, and judgement on, historians' arguments
5. Demonstration of understanding of relevant concepts and organisation and communication of a concisely-formulated argument.

How to award marks

Finding the right level

The first stage is to decide which level the answer should be placed in. To do this, use a 'best-fit' approach, deciding which level most closely describes the quality of the answer. Answers may display characteristics from more than one level, and where this happens markers must use their professional judgement to decide which level is most appropriate. For example, one stronger passage at Level 4 would not by itself merit a Level 4 mark, but it might be evidence to support a high Level 3 mark, unless there are substantial weaknesses in other areas. Similarly, an answer that fits best in Level 3 but which has some characteristics of Level 2 might be placed at the bottom of Level 3.

Placing a mark within a level

Use the instructions within the level to place the marks at high-, mid- or low level.

Standardisation and moderation

The assignment is marked by teachers. Where marking for this qualification has been carried out by more than one teacher in a centre, there must be a process of internal standardisation carried out to ensure that there is a consistent application of the assessment criteria.

Marks awarded by the centre will be subject to external moderation by Pearson. Moderation will ensure consistency with national standards and will review assignments to ensure that the assignment-setting rules have been correctly applied by centres. Pearson will notify centres of the students whose responses have been selected for moderation. This sample will take cohort size into account.

If the moderation indicates that centre assessment does not reflect national standards, an adjustment will be made to students' final marks to compensate.

Please refer to the Joint Council for Qualifications (JCQ) Instructions for conducting non-examination assessments (new GCE and GCSE specifications). The assessment in this qualification will comply with these instructions.

Malpractice

Candidate malpractice

Candidate malpractice refers to any act by a candidate that compromises or seeks to compromise the process of assessment or which undermines the integrity of the qualifications or the validity of results/certificates.

Candidate malpractice in controlled assessments discovered before the candidate has signed the declaration of authentication form does not need to be reported to Pearson.

Candidate malpractice found in controlled assessments after the declaration of authenticity has been signed, and in examinations must be reported to Pearson on a JCQ M1 Form (available at www.jcq.org.uk/exams-office/malpractice). The completed form can be emailed to pqsmalpractice@pearson.com or posted to Investigations Team, Pearson, 190 High Holborn, London, WC1V 7BH. Please provide as much information and supporting documentation as possible. Note that the final decision regarding appropriate sanctions lies with Pearson.

Failure to report candidate malpractice constitutes staff or centre malpractice.

Staff/centre malpractice

Staff and centre malpractice includes both deliberate malpractice and maladministration of our qualifications. As with candidate malpractice, staff and centre malpractice is any act that compromises or seeks to compromise the process of assessment or undermines the integrity of the qualifications or the validity of results/certificates.

All cases of suspected staff malpractice and maladministration must be reported immediately, before any investigation is undertaken by the centre, to Pearson on a JCQ M2(a) Form (available at www.jcq.org.uk/exams-office/malpractice). The form, supporting documentation and as much information as possible can be emailed to pqsmalpractice@pearson.com or posted to Investigations Team, Pearson, 190 High Holborn, London, WC1V 7BH. Note that the final decision regarding appropriate sanctions lies with Pearson.

Failure to report malpractice itself constitutes malpractice.

More detailed guidance on malpractice can be found in the latest version of the document JCQ General and Vocational Qualifications Suspected Malpractice in Examinations and Assessments, available at www.jcq.org.uk/exams-office/malpractice.

Security and backups

It is the responsibility of the centre to keep the work that students have submitted for assessment secure.

Secure storage is defined as a securely-locked cabinet or cupboard. The rules on storage also apply to electronic data. For materials stored electronically, centres are strongly advised to utilise firewall protection and virus-checking software, and to employ an effective backup strategy, so that an up-to-date archive of students' evidence is maintained.

Assessment

Assessment summary

Students must complete all assessment in May/June in any single year.

Summary of tables of assessment

Paper 1: Breadth study with interpretations *Paper codes: 9HI0/1A–1H

- First assessment: May/June 2017.
- The examination lasts 2 hours 15 minutes and is marked out of 60.
- Students answer three questions: one from Section A, one from Section B and one from Section C.
- Section A comprises a choice of two essay questions that assess understanding of the period in breadth (AO1) and target content specified in the Themes for the relevant option. Questions may cross the Themes.
Questions will normally cover periods of at least 10 years. Any AO1 concepts may be targeted (i.e. causation, consequence, change, continuity, similarity, difference, significance).
- Section B comprises a choice of two essay questions that assess understanding of the period in breadth (AO1) and target content specified in the Themes for the relevant option. Questions may cross the Themes.
Questions will normally cover periods equivalent to at least a third of the timespan of the Themes. Any AO1 concepts may be targeted.
- Section C comprises one compulsory question that assesses the ability to analyse and evaluate interpretations (AO3) and targets content specified in Historical interpretations for the relevant option.
Questions will be based on two extracts from historical interpretations totalling approximately 350 words.

30% of the total
qualification

* See Appendix 3: Codes for a description of this code and all other codes relevant to this qualification.

The sample assessment materials can be found in the Pearson Edexcel Level 3 Advanced GCE in History Sample Assessment Materials document (ISBN 9781446912492).

- First assessment: May/June 2017.
- The examination lasts 1 hour 30 minutes and is marked out of 40.
- Students answer two questions: one from Section A and one from Section B.
- Section A comprises one compulsory question for the option studied that assesses the ability to analyse and evaluate source material that is primary and/or contemporary to the period (AO2) and target content specified in one or more Key topics for the relevant option.

Questions will be based on two sources that together total approximately 400 words.
- Section B comprises a choice of two essay questions that assess understanding of the period in depth (AO1) and target content specified in the Key topics for the relevant option. Questions may cross the Key topics.

Any AO1 concepts may be targeted (i.e. causation, consequence, change, continuity, similarity, difference, significance).

Paper 3: Themes in breadth with aspects in depth

*Paper codes: 9HI0/30–39

30% of the
total
qualification

- First assessment: May/June 2017.
- The examination lasts 2 hours 15 minutes and is marked out of 60.
- Students answer three questions: one from Section A, one from Section B and one from Section C.
- Section A comprises one compulsory question that assesses the ability to analyse and evaluate source material that is primary and/or contemporary to the period (AO2) and targets content specified in the Key topics within the Aspects in depth for the relevant option.

Questions will be based on a source that is approximately 350 words long, and students will be required to analyse and evaluate it in relation to two related enquiries.

- Section B comprises a choice of two essay questions that assess understanding of the period in depth (AO1) and target content specified in Key topics within the Aspects in depth for the relevant option. Questions may cross the Key topics.

Any AO1 concepts may be targeted (i.e. causation, consequence, change, continuity, similarity, difference, significance).

- Section C comprises a choice of two essay questions that assess understanding of the period in breadth (AO1) and target content specified in Themes within the Aspects in breadth for the relevant option. Questions may cross the Themes.

Questions will target change over periods of at least 100 years, focusing on:

- the process of change (factors bringing it about)
- the extent of change; or
- the impact of change; or
- patterns of change (turning points).

* See Appendix 3: Codes for a description of this code and all other codes relevant to this qualification.

Coursework

*Paper code: 9H10/04

- First moderation: May/June 2017.
- Students carry out an independently-researched enquiry requiring them to analyse and evaluate historical interpretations and to organise and communicate the findings (AO3, AO1)
- The assignment is set by the centre on a question, problem or issue that has generated disagreement among historians.
- The assignment is marked out of 40.

Entry and assessment information

Student entry

Details of how to enter students for the examinations for this qualification can be found in our UK Information Manual. A copy is made available to all examinations officers and is available on our website at: www.edexcel.com.

Discount code and performance tables

Centres should be aware that students who enter for more than one GCE qualification with the same discount code will have only one of the grades they achieve counted for the purpose of the school and college performance tables. This will be the grade for the larger qualification (i.e. the A Level grade rather than the AS grade). If the qualifications are the same size, then the better grade will be counted (please see Appendix 3: Codes).

Students should be advised that if they take two GCE qualifications with the same discount code, colleges, universities and employers they wish to progress to are likely to take the view that this achievement is equivalent to only one GCE. The same view may be taken if students take two GCE qualifications that have different discount codes but have significant overlap of content. Students or their advisers who have any doubts about their subject combinations should check with the institution to which they wish to progress to before embarking on their programmes.

Access arrangements, reasonable adjustments and special consideration

Access arrangements

Access arrangements are agreed before an assessment. They allow students with special educational needs, disabilities or temporary injuries to:

- access the assessment
- show what they know and can do without changing the demands of the assessment.

The intention behind an access arrangement is to meet the particular needs of an individual disabled student without affecting the integrity of the assessment. Access arrangements are the principal way in which awarding bodies comply with the duty under the Equality Act 2010 to make 'reasonable adjustments'.

Access arrangements should always be processed at the start of the course. Students will then know what is available and have the access arrangement(s) in place for assessment.

Reasonable adjustments

The Equality Act 2010 requires an awarding organisation to make reasonable adjustments where a person with a disability would be at a substantial disadvantage in undertaking an assessment. The awarding organisation is required to take reasonable steps to overcome that disadvantage.

A reasonable adjustment for a particular person may be unique to that individual and therefore might not be in the list of available access arrangements.

Whether an adjustment will be considered reasonable will depend on a number of factors, which will include:

- the needs of the student with the disability
- the effectiveness of the adjustment
- the cost of the adjustment; and
- the likely impact of the adjustment on the student with the disability and other students.

An adjustment will not be approved if it involves unreasonable costs to the awarding organisation, timeframes or affects the security or integrity of the assessment. This is because the adjustment is not 'reasonable'.

Special consideration

Special consideration is a post-examination adjustment to a student's mark or grade to reflect temporary injury, illness or other indisposition at the time of the examination/assessment, which has had, or is reasonably likely to have had, a material effect on a candidate's ability to take an assessment or demonstrate his or her level of attainment in an assessment.

Further information

Please see our website for further information about how to apply for access arrangements and special consideration.

For further information about access arrangements, reasonable adjustments and special consideration, please refer to the JCQ website: www.jcq.org.uk.

Equality Act 2010 and Pearson's equality policy

Equality and fairness are central to our work. Our equality policy requires all students to have equal opportunity to access our qualifications and assessments, and our qualifications to be awarded in a way that is fair to every student.

We are committed to making sure that:

- students with a protected characteristic (as defined by the Equality Act 2010) are not, when they are undertaking one of our qualifications, disadvantaged in comparison to students who do not share that characteristic
- all students achieve the recognition they deserve for undertaking a qualification and that this achievement can be compared fairly to the achievement of their peers.

You can find details on how to make adjustments for students with protected characteristics in the policy document Access Arrangements, Reasonable Adjustments and Special Considerations, which is on our website, www.edexcel.com.

Awarding and reporting

This qualification will be graded, awarded and certificated to comply with the requirements of the current Code of Practice, published by the Office of Qualifications and Examinations Regulation (Ofqual).

The qualification will be graded and certificated on a six-grade scale from A* to E using the total subject mark. Individual papers are not graded.

The first certification opportunity for the Pearson Edexcel Level 3 Advanced GCE in History will be 2017.

Students whose level of achievement is below the minimum judged by Pearson to be of sufficient standard to be recorded on a certificate will receive an unclassified U result.

Language of assessment

Assessment of this qualification will be available in English. All student work must be in English.

Other information

Student recruitment

Pearson follows the JCQ policy concerning recruitment to our qualifications in that:

- they must be available to anyone who is capable of reaching the required standard
- they must be free from barriers that restrict access and progression
- equal opportunities exist for all students.

Prior learning and other requirements

There are no prior learning or other requirements for this qualification.

Progression

Students can progress from this qualification to:

- higher education courses, such as degrees in history or in related subjects such as politics, English literature, law, philosophy, economics or geography.
- other higher education courses in unrelated subjects
- vocational qualifications such as the BTEC Level 4 HNC Diplomas and BTEC Level 5 HND Diplomas
- a wide range of careers in areas such as journalism and media, education, libraries, national and local government and the civil service.

Relationship between Advanced Subsidiary and Advanced GCEs

The Advanced Subsidiary GCE is designed to be at the same level of demand as the first year of the Advanced GCE.

The taught content for Papers 1 and 2 is identical but differentiation for these papers will be through assessment and awarding. Advanced GCE students will be expected to draw on a greater depth and range of content and evidence, and evaluate with more sophistication, demonstrating a deeper understanding of historical concepts, producing responses that are more analytical and judgements that are more effectively substantiated.

It is important to note that these are standalone qualifications. This means that any students who have taken the Advanced Subsidiary GCE and wish to progress to the Advanced GCE will need to take all four Advanced GCE assessed components, i.e. Papers 1, 2, 3 and the Coursework.

The specification for the Pearson Edexcel Level 3 Advanced Subsidiary GCE in History can be found on our website.

Progression from GCSE to Advanced GCE

This qualification provides progression from GCSE. It can, for example, allow students to develop a broader and deeper understanding of history as a discipline and of the specified content; and allow them to develop higher skills when working with evidence.

Appendix 1: Transferable skills

The need for transferable skills

In recent years, higher education institutions and employers have consistently flagged the need for students to develop a range of transferable skills to enable them to respond with confidence to the demands of undergraduate study and the world of work.

The Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) defines skills, or competencies, as 'the bundle of knowledge, attributes and capacities that can be learned and that enable individuals to successfully and consistently perform an activity or task and can be built upon and extended through learning.'¹

To support the design of our qualifications, the Pearson Research Team selected and evaluated seven global 21st-century skills frameworks. Following on from this process, we identified the National Research Council's (NRC) framework as the most evidence-based and robust skills framework. We adapted the framework slightly to include the Program for International Student Assessment (PISA) ICT Literacy and Collaborative Problem Solving (CPS) Skills.

The adapted National Research Council's framework of skills involves:²

Cognitive skills

- Non-routine problem solving – expert thinking, metacognition, creativity.
- Systems thinking – decision making and reasoning.
- Critical thinking – definitions of critical thinking are broad and usually involve general cognitive skills such as analysing, synthesising and reasoning skills.
- ICT literacy - access, manage, integrate, evaluate, construct and communicate³.

Interpersonal skills

- Communication – active listening, oral communication, written communication, assertive communication and non-verbal communication.
- Relationship-building skills – teamwork, trust, intercultural sensitivity, service orientation, self-presentation, social influence, conflict resolution and negotiation.
- Collaborative problem solving – establishing and maintaining shared understanding, taking appropriate action, establishing and maintaining team organisation.

³ PISA - The PISA Framework for Assessment of ICT Literacy (2011)

Intrapersonal skills

- Adaptability – ability and willingness to cope with the uncertain, handling work stress, adapting to different personalities, communication styles and cultures, and physical adaptability to various indoor and outdoor work environments.
- Self-management and self-development – ability to work remotely in virtual teams, work autonomously, be self-motivating and self-monitoring, willing and able to acquire new information and skills related to work.

Transferable skills enable young people to face the demands of further and higher education, as well as the demands of the workplace, and are important in the teaching and learning of this qualification. We will provide teaching and learning materials, developed with stakeholders, to support our qualifications.

Appendix 2: Level 3 Extended Project qualification

What is the Extended Project?

The Extended Project is a standalone qualification that can be taken alongside GCEs. It supports the development of independent learning skills and helps to prepare students for their next step – whether that be university study or employment. The qualification:

- is recognised by higher education for the skills it develops
- is worth half an Advanced GCE qualification at grades A*–E
- carries UCAS points for university entry.

The Extended Project encourages students to develop skills in the following areas: research, critical thinking, extended writing and project management. Students identify and agree a topic area of their choice (which may or may not be related to a GCE subject they are already studying), guided by their teacher.

Students can choose from one of four approaches to produce:

- a dissertation (for example an investigation based on predominately secondary research)
- an investigation/field study (for example a practical experiment)
- a performance (for example in music, drama or sport)
- an artefact (for example a creating a sculpture in response to a client brief or solving an engineering problem).

The qualification is coursework based and students are assessed on the skills of managing, planning and evaluating their project. Students will research their topic, develop skills to review and evaluate the information, and then present the final outcome of their project.

Students: what they need to do

The Extended Project qualification requires students to:

- select a topic of interest for an in-depth study and negotiate the scope of the project with their teacher
- identify and draft an objective for their project (for example in the form of a question, hypothesis, challenge, outline of proposed performance, issue to be investigated or commission for a client) and provide a rationale for their choice
- produce a plan for how they will deliver their intended objective
- conduct research as required by the project brief, using appropriate techniques
- carry out the project using tools and techniques safely
- share the outcome of the project using appropriate communication methods, including a presentation.

Teachers: key information

- The Extended Project has 120 guided learning hours (GLH) consisting of:
 - a taught 40-GLH element that includes teaching the technical skills (for example research skills)
 - a guided 80-GLH element that includes mentoring students through the project work.
- Group work is acceptable, however it is important that each student provides evidence of their own contribution and produces their own report.
- 100% externally moderated.
- Four Assessment Objectives: manage, use resources, develop and realise, review.
- Can be run over 1, 1½ or 2 years.
- Can be submitted in January or June.

How to link the Extended Project with history

The Extended Project creates the opportunity to develop transferable skills for progression to higher education and to the workplace through the exploration of an area of personal interest or a topic of interest from within the history qualification content.

Skills developed

Through the Extended Project, students will develop skills in the following areas:

- independent research skills, including skills in primary research and the selection of appropriate methods for data collection
- extended reading and academic writing, including reading academic articles
- planning/project management, including the refining of research questions
- evaluation of arguments and processes, including evaluation of the research process
- critical thinking.

In the context of the Extended Project, critical thinking refers to the ability to identify and develop arguments for a point of view or hypothesis and to consider and respond to alternative arguments.

The Extended Project is an ideal vehicle to develop the transferable skills identified in Appendix 1.

Using the Extended Project to support breadth and depth

Students are not expected to study specified material in the Extended Project. They are assessed on the quality of the work they produce and the skills they develop and demonstrate through completing work on the Extended Project. Students should demonstrate that they have extended themselves in some significant way by means of their Extended Project. It is important that they show, at the outset, how their work involves significant extension beyond what they have been studying in history.

Students can use the Extended Project to demonstrate extension in one or more dimensions:

- deepening understanding: where a student explores a topic in greater depth than in the qualification content. A student could choose to conduct a deeper analytic study about a topic, or exploration of a concept such as revolution
- widening perspectives: where the student's project spans different subjects. Cross-curricular exploration that involves examining, for example, the political, social, philosophical or psychological aspects of a topic.

Choosing topics and narrowing down to a question

Topics or titles linked to the themes from the history course could inspire a choice of Extended Project topic.

As an example of a history-related project, consider a student with an interest in the link between history and politics. For example, a student studying Russia in the twentieth century could write a dissertation on the changing influence of Marxist ideas in Russia or its different influences on Leninism and Maoism.

Investigation/field studies can be carried out on topics studied in history. The investigation/field study unit involves collection of data through primary research and data analysis. For example, a study of primary historical data derived from archives.

There is also scope for history-based performance or artefact projects. For example, students might perform a play exploring an aspect of social history or real historical events, or create an artefact inspired by a topic studied in history.

Appendix 3: Codes

Appendix 6: Rationale

DfE subject criteria for history: subject content (selected paragraphs)	Pearson Edexcel Level 3 Advanced GCE in History
3. AS and A Level specifications in History must provide a broad and coherent course of study for all students whether they progress to further study in the subject or not.	Breadth is achieved within the components and across the course as a whole in terms of chronology and topics/perspectives. Within components: The Paper 1 themes and the Paper 3 Aspects in breadth target chronological breadth. Across the course: the four components provide a chronologically broad course of study (with topics covering a range of least 200 years) and broad and varied combinations of topics and perspectives from which to choose. Coherence is achieved in relation to: components and topics; skills and concepts; and perspectives. Components and topics: Paper 1 and Paper 2 options are linked by a thematic connection which provides coherence and means that Paper 1 gives context for the Paper 2 depth study. Paper 3 is a coherent component in its own right which combines aspects of breadth and depth and which may be used to continue a theme or period from Papers 1 and 2 or to provide diversity in the course. Links can be made from Paper 3 to Papers 1 and 2 at a high level, for example in relation to power, authority, continuity and change. Skills and concepts: Students develop a range of skills across the examined components. Each assessment objective is assessed in more than one component, which provides links between them and prevents them from being considered in isolation. They will study second order concepts across all three examined options, which also provides coherence. Students will draw on the skills and understanding of the discipline from other components and develop these through completing the coursework. Perspectives: The qualification has been designed to ensure that students study a range of historical perspectives and an understanding of the breadth and diversity of history. The Paper 3 options and coursework task allow teachers to deepen appreciation of perspectives and provide coherence by looking for greater contrast (e.g. they may choose a more socially-orientated topic to contrast with a more political route in Papers 1 and 2) or greater homogeneity (e.g. choosing a Paper 3 topic that contains a similar mix of perspectives to Papers 1 and 2).
